Scandent wins Enterprise Learning System deal from Singapore Airlines

Bangalore, 16 August 2005: Scandent Solutions, a broad based IT solutions company, recently signed a major deal with Singapore Airlines, one of the world's leading airlines, to implement an Enterprise Learning System (ELS). The core products that will be implemented include Plateau Learning and Performance Management™ and Centra Live™ for Virtual Classes (Symposium).

The roll-out of ELS for Singapore Airlines will represent one of the largest learning initiatives in Singapore. Besides improving the business processes in Singapore Airlines' training schools, the ELS will also ensure that the right training is identified and delivered to the right people at the right time and, thus, increasing the effectiveness of staff across the Singapore Airlines' Group.

“We are very pleased to partner with Singapore Airlines in implementing a strategic enterprise learning initiative that will further maximize the Airline's operating performance” said Dilip Keshu, CEO of Scandent. “We are privileged to serve one of the best airlines in the world, known for its high standards of service excellence. We chose to bid leading solutions, from Plateau and Centra, because we believe they are the best products in the context of learning solutions.”
